

The following 8 pages are the cut-out-books for the two-dimensional version of The "Tower of Books" Challenge. Each time a child reads a text from the category list, he cuts out one of these books, fills out the title and category, and pastes it onto the Tower Template*, forming a stack of books. Every book read means a taller tower of books! Check the "Guide" file for step-by-step photographic instructions!

Every 10th book is red. These are good opportunities to build-in intermediate incentives.

* The Tower Template can be found in this file, after the cut-out-books.

The following pages make up the "Tower Template" for the two-dimensional version of The "Tower of Books" Challenge. The Tower Template is where the child pastes each cut-out-book. The template has all the book-outlines in order, forming a place to create the tower of books.

The 40-book tower template is seven sheets long. Each page gets connected vertically to the page beneath it, forming a very tall template. The size is a motivator! The child can hang it on the fridge (or wall) for continuous display, or roll it up like a scroll when not in use.

Note: If the child is doing the 30-book or 20-book option instead of the 40-book option, use the corresponding "cap-page" (the template sheet at the top of the tower) to "cap off" the tower at the appropriate number of books. The 30-book and 20-book cap pages are found at the end.

The Tower of Books Challenge

This is the "cap page" to the 40-book option.
(You can find "Cap pages" for the 30-book and 20-book options at the end.)

(Cut off this top strip.)

The following page is an extension page to allow you to stack HIGHER than 40 books. Just paste it onto the cap-page, and keep on stacking!

*Note: Use the book-spines that come AFTER the next page for additional stacking beyond 40 books. They do not have numbers on them, so you can hand-write the appropriate number and attach to the extension pages as you wish. OR, you could print a second "Tower Template" to hang next to the first one.

Or cut this strip off if this will be the top page.
